Shoe Factory Discussion.

We apprehend there is but one opinion among the business men of the city concerning the establishment of a new shoe factory here. The more industries of this character we can get, giving employment to many hands and distributing a large sum of money in wages to be circulated among our traders, the greater the prosperity of the city. The question is, however, can the city build a factory and place it at the disposal of a private corporation? There are legal complications involved unaffected by the fact that such an investment might in the end prove an excellent thing for the city. If it is possible for the city to encourage the establishment of a new factory in this way it seems to us that there ought to be no question as to the propriety.

Messrs. Parker & Peakes have for years conducted such a factory in our city. They are energetic and progressive business men, who, from a small beginning, have developed a large and important plant in Bangor—a plant that has been a credit as well as an advantage to the city. They are ready and anxious to enlarge their business and have made formal application to the City Government to be considered in this matter, stating their desire to occupy the new factory, if built, and thus increase their business, it being their intention to continue the present plant just as they have done in the past. The Boston firm turns out the same product now manufactured by Parker & Peakes and would thus become a competitor against our local firm. If the city is going to encourage industry it should give the preference to our own citizens, especially when the local firm does not ask for any different conditions from those imposed by the Boston firm.

Bram Pronounced Guilty.

The terrible tragedy enacted on the Herbert Fuller, including the brutal murder of Captain Nash and his wife, as well as the second mate, has for some time attracted public attention, and the trial of Mate Bram has been followed with intense interest. The verdict of guilty rendered Saturday after the jury had been out twenty-six hours, came somewhat in the nature of a surprise. The prevailing impression was that the trial would end in a disagreement. This was not due so much to any feeling of strong doubt as to the guilt of the accused, but rather to the lack of positive evidence, or, at least, what seemed to be a lack of positive evidence in the reports of the trial, connecting Bram with the crime. But of course it has to be remembered that the members of the jury were in a position to enable them to weigh with care the evidence as presented by the witnesses, while the public can only judge from the published reports.

To those who have followed the case there were some weak points in the defence that were not developed as they might have been by the prosecution. Bram has shown himself on the stand to be a man of remarkable nerve and a good deal more than average intelligence. Yet at the time of the commission of this crime, although he was the ranking officer after the death of Captain Nash, he permitted the colored steward to take charge of the vessel. Something had broken for the time being the cool nerve so pronounced all through the trial. What was Pleasant Testimonia.

After a service of sixteen years as Register of Probate in Kennebec County, Mr. Howard Owen, having declined another term, was succeeded at the opening of the new year by Mr. W. A. Newcombe, the well-known journalist. On turning the office over to his successor the other county officials gave expression to their esteem and friendship for Mr. Owen by the presentation of a magnificent gold watch and chain. The watch was appropriately inscribed and attached to the chain was a handsome keystone charm, emblematic of the Royal Arch Chapter of Masonry of which Mr. Owen is a member. The presentation speech was made by Judge Andrews who referred to the faithful service of the recipient, Mr. Owen not having lost a single court day during his long term. "Howard" has a host of friends all over the State who will rejoice with him in this splendid recognition of work well done, and he always does everything we know that he undertakes.

Newspapers Chorus Congratulations Over Prospects of Peace.

Ireland's Taxes Attracting Much Attention in United Kingdom.

London, Jan. 2.—Special cable letter—The newspapers of today generally review the events of the past year dwelling at length on the more prominent topics and all join in a chorus of congratulations over the prospects of peace that everywhere prevail. Special attention is laid upon the relations existing between Great Britain and the United States and comparisons are made between the situation now and that existing a year ago when there was much anxiety on both sides of the Atlantic regarding the interests of the dispute between England and America in relation to the Venezuela boundary.

The vitality and integrity of the popular interest in the dominant question in Ireland, that of securing imperial justice for the country, has been fully evinced by the great meetings in Dublin, Limerick and Belfast. Despite the holiday season these meetings attracted a strongly influential attendance composed of men of all shades of political and religious faith, all eager to impress upon the British government their demand for the redress of their financial grievances.

On Thursday night a few days ago an announcement of important meeting was held at Limerick, presided over by Lord Dunraven, who sits in the house of lords as Baron Kenry. He is a conservative and has heretofore been a staunch supporter of the government but his sympathies in the chairmanship of the Limerick meeting is proof that he will be found opposing the ministry on the question of Irish taxation unless the government makes concessions that will avert an open fight. One of the most prominent speakers at the meeting was the Most Rev. Edward T. O'Dwyer Roman Catholic bishop of Limerick, who made a strong speech setting forth the wrongs under which Ireland labored in the shape of heavy taxation and urging Irishmen to sink all differences and stand together when their rights are at stake. The bishop's utterances under prior circumstances would have been considered treasonable.

An Address By John Daly.

John Daly, the prominent Irish nationalist, also spoke. His presence at the meeting with Lord Dunraven shows how community of interest has caused political antagonisms to be laid aside. Daly expressed himself as expressing the hope that if Lord Castlereagh or Marquis Ormsby Gore should come to Ireland and Ireland, he would find a place and hold as the successor of Washington.

Lord Rosebery's speech in Edinburgh takes a prominent part in the present excitement. It was he who a short time ago made a speech at Cork in which he urged the government for Irish home rule in the matter of Irish taxation, saying that he hoped that Cork might be free itself and the people of Cork follow the example set by the colonies in Boston when they threw the tea overboard in 1773.

The Belfast meeting was held in Belfast under the auspices of the chamber of commerce. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss the question of the taxation of Ireland and to place on record the opinion of the chamber of commerce as to the proper relations between Great Britain and Ireland. The meeting was largely attended and gave evidence no less than the other meetings of the country's serious concern in the matter under discussion.

Another Royal Commission.

Since last week it has been decided to commence the appointment of another royal commission to investigate the taxation question instead of a committee of the house of commons as was at first proposed. This will enable the government to obtain a commission having a majority free of the alleged home rule bias of the Cowper commission, whose report in favor of Ireland has already guaranteed for the legislation now going on. The Irish members will delay any legislative action on the question for the first two sessions and until the time arrives for the cabinet to make a grand coup designed to settle the demand for autonomy for Ireland and to reduce the Irish representation at Westminster under the redistribution of seats schedule. It cannot be doubted that the last event has caused some important points to be stated, but the evidence of witnesses who appeared before the commission, and who will reappear before the next commission, has told a representative of the United Associated Press that it will

Russia's Actions Thought Strange.

A dispatch from London says: A dispatch from Berlin says that the Russian government has given orders that the Russian ambassador to Berlin, Prince Lobanoff, should not be received by the emperor William. This is considered very strange, as it is known that the Russian government has given its consent to the visit of the German emperor to Vienna, and the Russian ambassador to Berlin is now at Vienna. The Russian government has given no reason for its action, but it is said that it is due to the fact that the Russian government has not been consulted in the matter of the visit of the German emperor to Vienna.

Plague Rapidly Spreading.

Advices received from Bombay state that the plague is rapidly increasing in that city. The number of deaths from the plague in Bombay last week was 1,000. The plague is now spreading in the surrounding districts. The Bombay authorities are taking every precaution to prevent the spread of the plague to other parts of India. The plague is now in Bombay, Poona, Karachi, Kolapore, Kolhapur, Kolhapur, Kolhapur nounced it through the trial. What was it? A man, with such control over himself as the prisoner has manifested during the trial, would not, under any ordinary circumstances, be so shaken by the commission of a crime, in which he had no part, as to lose sight of the responsibility devolving upon him as banking officer, and permit a mere colored steward to assume control. His explanation of his demoralization at this time was far from satisfactory, and was not made as much of as its importance would seem to warrant.

The counsel for the defence have been allowed two weeks in which to file exceptions, the Government another week in which to examine the same, and then will follow the arguments after which the Court will decide whether a new trial should be granted.

Too Modest.

President Lamb, of the New England Free Trade League, very modestly announces the conditions by which President McKinley, of the United States, can enter the distinguished consideration of the League. It all depends upon President McKinley, who is simply asked to "let the tariff alone" and thus make himself sold with the Free Trade League. President Lamb's sense of humor is about as large as his knowledge of the business needs of the country. What possible difference can it make to President McKinley whether the Free Trade League approves or disapproves of him personally. So far as his administration is concerned the worst thing that could happen to it would be to merit the endorsement of a handful of theorists who represent nothing but that which is antagonistic to the interests of the people.

President Lamb, if he is not entirely demented on this question, might learn something to his advantage if he could occupy a corner of the room in which the hearings in connection with the tariff are now taking place. Two years ago Mr. A. H. Winchester, of West Virginia, entertained the same foolish ideas to which Mr. Lamb still clings so tenaciously. Last Thursday he appeared before the committee to use his own words, "repenting in tears." Two years ago he was in favor of free lumber. To-day he is asking for a duty because free lumber has destroyed the trade even down in West Virginia. The experience under the Wilson-Gorman tariff has taught him a lesson that will last for a life-time.

Turn in whichever direction you please and the demand is the same, namely, for more revenue and protection. The free traders declare that a protective tariff will not increase the revenue. This parrot cry reminds us of the man who consulted a lawyer to know if a neighbor could remove the bolt on his door and take his horse. The lawyer replied certainly not, whereupon the seeker for information retorted "But he has." So when the free trader insists that a protective tariff will not supply revenue the answer is, "but it has." The Treasury deficit is a creation of the Democratic party. The Government not only had sufficient means for current expenses under a protective tariff law, but constantly reduced the public debt. Theory does not count here. The people are dealing with facts and figures.

If nothing short of letting the law for perfidy and dishonor alone will soothe the feelings of President Lamb he is destined to an unhappy experience. That law is going to be revised on business principles in accordance with the demand of the people, the New England Free Trade League to the contrary notwithstanding.

GEN. TAYLOR INTERVIEWED.

Agrees with President Cleveland on Cuban Question.

Chicago, Jan. 2.—It was not until the close of Karl Pfaddenhauer's long interview in Washington yesterday that Gen. Charles H. Taylor, of Boston, could be induced to talk upon current topics and express opinions which he, in his capacity of editor of the Boston Globe, represents in New England.

He considers Secretary Olney's note to Spanish bellicose to Boston, but approves the story of State's recalcitrance. He would like to see Nelson Dingley, the greatest of the tariff makers in the new congress, and the second thought of with President Cleveland at the Cabinet meeting.

It seems to me that the new congressmen promise to be the business men, he said. "Prosperity will come if we give it time. There have been times when I despaired of my world, the old country, but I never despaired of my country. We have had our troubles, but we have survived them. We have had our hopes. It will take some time for things to regulate themselves and people to realize that the world is not going to hell. It was wrong to conclude that the failure of the Indiana National Bank in Illinois indicated the crash. It was the result of a long and unnecessary contest between capital and labor, which ought to be settled by the courts. It is not true that the country is in a state of panic. It is not true that the people are starving. The great corporations have not shut down. They are trying to regulate the relations between capital and labor. MASSACHUSETTS DEMOCRATS.

The Factional Fight Being Aired in Court.

Boston, Jan. 2.—The followers of George Fred Williams in the Democratic state central committee, have begun court proceedings against the Faneuil hall faction of the committee. Judge Holmes in the supreme court this morning was presented with a petition brought by John V. Sullivan, of Braintree, against John H. Sullivan, of Boston, and fifteen others, praying for writ of mandamus.

The object of the petition is to prevent the respondents from taking part in the reorganization of the Democratic state central committee, claiming that they have no right to do so.

The first six named taken in that the sectional conventions only have the right to elect members of the state central committee and equally that the respondents who were selected by the Faneuil hall convention, were not legally chosen.

The court issued an order of notice upon the respondents, returnable into court at 11 o'clock tomorrow. The Democratic state central committee meets this afternoon for reorganization.

At 11 o'clock Ex-Judge Corcoran, N. G. Robinson and Hon. John H. Sullivan appeared to answer the order of notice. When the case was called, Judge Holmes asked Counsel Pratt for the petitioners, provided his friends and the respondents could not agree, that the meeting called to organize the state central committee today, be postponed, until the questions of the case be heard, and also agree that the case be fixed for hearing.

Judge Corcoran stated that he was about to suggest that that be done. He said the respondents' counsel, S. J. Elder, had not age redyet, but had been sent for. Just at the moment Mr. Elder appeared. Counsel Pratt, for the petitioners, suggested to the court that perhaps a further order should be issued upon the responde ts as he had not been able to get a service upon all of them in the short time in which the previous order had been served. It was agreed by both sides that the meeting of the committee, called for noon today, should be postponed to await the call of some appointed person for the outcome of the case and that the case be fixed for Jan. 19, for hearing.

A meeting of the Citizens' Association of Bangor was held on Saturday for the purpose of discussing various matters. This organization has been known as the Good Government Club but its name is now the Citizens' Association of Bangor.

This club is intended to be permanent, entirely non-partisan and to interest itself in municipal affairs only. The organization has not yet been fully completed, but it only awaits the appointment of the executive committee and sub-committees. There is nothing secret about the club or its meetings. All those in full sympathy with the purposes of the club are eligible to membership and if they will send their names to Secretary C. H. Bartlett they will be proposed for membership according to the constitution. The next meeting of the club will be on Thursday of this week at 7.30 p.m. The constitution is as follows:

CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION OF BANGOR.

CONSTITUTION.

I. This Association shall be called the "Citizens' Association of Bangor," and shall be composed of citizens and taxpayers of Bangor, irrespective of party.

II. The purpose of this Association shall be to promote an honest, efficient and economical administration of municipal affairs, by inducing the citizens and taxpayers to take a more active and intelligent interest in such affairs, by furnishing an accurate and non-partisan account of the manner in which the city is governed, and of the conduct of the public servants, by encouraging faithful and exposing unfaithful performance of official duties, and by advocating legislation necessary or proper for securing its purpose.

FARMERS' PRODUCT COMPANY.

Stockyards Which May Come to Bangor if Arrangements Can Be Made.

It will be remembered that the Farmers' Product Company was recently formed in this city with a capital of a million dollars. Mr. George W. Maxfield, who is at the head of the company, has just returned from a business trip away in the interests of the company and stated the plans of the company to a Whig representative.

He says that the company will locate in Maine where it gets the best privilege and will erect a packing house and establish a stockyard either in Bangor, Lewiston, Portland, Waterville, Oldtown, Rockland, Newport Junction or Brewer. Bangor is regarded with much favor owing to its excellent location and the company will locate here if the citizens take hold of the plan.

He says that Maine is not now an especial stock raising State as potato and hay raising have received much more attention, and the new company proposes to furnish the farmers of Maine with any number of hogs, sheep and cattle, for breeding purposes. This stock will be selected from the very best herds of northern New York, Canada, northern Michigan, Kentucky, Ohio and other States of that class, and will be of the best class for pork, mutton, wool, milk and beef purposes. The company will sell this stock to the farmers of Maine, in large or small quantities, in order that the stock raising may begin quickly. The farmers can take the new stock and with it, it is said, raise up a product which shall find a constant market at the general prices of the world in the stock-yards to be established by the Farmers' Product Company of Maine. The company will, Mr. Maxfield says, have a solid financial backing.

Mr. Maxfield says that in order to accomplish the result desired all citizens, either capitalists, traders or others,

PLEASING EVENT.

Reading of "A Tale of Two Cities" by Miss Grace Chamberlain.

At the lecture room of the Y. M. C. A. building Saturday evening Miss Grace Chamberlain gave a reading for the benefit of the King's Daughters' Union and an audience of very good size passed a very enjoyable evening in hearing the skillful and pleasing reader.

Miss Chamberlain read Dickens' "Tale of Two Cities," well known as one of the great novelist's strongest books. Miss Chamberlain has the qualifications and experience which make a reader of excellent quality, as was shown by her Saturday evening. Her elocution is thoroughly effective in portraying the different characters and her facial expression and graceful action add very much to her work. She made a most favorable impression upon her audience, which was greatly interested and finely entertained by the reading.

AMUSEMENTS.

Robert Mantell.

"The Face in the Moonlight" was repeated Saturday afternoon by the Robert Mantell company at the Opera House and the presentation was enjoyed with all the favor of the first performance, which was excellent. The play is strong and Mr. Mantell and his able support make the most of every scene.

In the evening an audience of goodly proportions had the pleasure of witnessing a splendid performance of "Othello." Mr. Mantell, of course, had the role of the Moor and it was in every way a powerful portrayal. His massive, yet athletic, frame and deep voice add to his impressive treatment of the role and he was at all times extremely effective. A certain call and frequent applause showed the warm appreciation of the audience.

Miss Behrens as "Desdemona" was charmingly acted with all the grace and spirit which characterize her delightful portrayals and Miss Monk's "Emilia"

The Century
IN 1897.
ALL NEW FEATURES.

The Century will continue to be in every respect the leading American magazine, its table of contents including each month the best in literature and art. The present interest in American history makes especially timely A Great Novel of the American Revolution, its leading serial feature for 1897, and the master-piece of its author, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. The story, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," purports to be the autobiography of its hero, an officer on Washington's staff. Social life in Philadelphia at the time of the Revolution is most interestingly depicted, and the characters include Washington, Franklin, Lafayette, and others well known in history. It is safe to say that the readers of this great romance will obtain from it a clearer idea of the people who were foremost in Revolutionary days, and of the social life of the times, than can be had from any other single source. The work is not only historically accurate, but is a most interesting story of love and war. The first chapters are in the November number. Howard Pyle will illustrate it.

Campaigning With Grant, by General Horace Porter, is the title of a series of articles which has been in preparation for many years. General Porter was an aide on General Grant's staff and a close friend of his chief, and the diary which he kept through the war is the basis of the present articles, which are striking pen-pictures of campaign life and scenes. They will be fully illustrated. The first one is in the November Century.

A new novel by Marion Crawford, author of "Mr. Isaacs," "Dr. Claudius," "Zoroaster," etc., entitled, "A Rose of Yesterday," a story of modern life in Europe, with American characters, begins in November. The first of a series of engravings, made by the famous wood-engraver, T. Cole, of the old English masters, also is in this issue. New features will be announced from time to time.

Though Prosperity Comes, Forget Not Your Family's Future.

"No fact is more indelibly inscribed on the pages of our history than this—prosperity comes to every generation that looks forward now with eagle eye and confident hope. There are many indications of the early advent. Millions of men are expecting to take advantage of it, when it comes, and make homes or provision for those they love. But some of them will not be here to take action the moment opens, and their present expectations will be worthless assets. Prosperity is on its way to you. It will come sooner or later. Shall your family reap the benefit? Shall provision be made secure for dependent families by assuring life now? Those who neglect to assure are subjecting their families to great loss—the risk of legal deprivation of all the results of the prosperity that is coming by reason of every event as to the 'is there prudence or common sense or justice in such neglect?'

The remains of Mrs. Anna French Pudney, which arrived in the city Friday afternoon from Lewiston, accompanied by her husband and were taken to the undertaking rooms of A. P. Cole, were viewed by friends of the deceased in this city and Brewer. The burial was at Mt. Hope in the French lot.

Quite extensive repairs are being made on the building on the wharf of the Boston & Bangor S. S. Co., and when they come into use again in the spring they will be in excellent condition. The office of the company in this city is now located at the usual winter quarters in Railroad Block at the Exchange street depot.

There were 50 members present at the meeting of the Boston Bowdoin College Club held Saturday evening in the Copley Square Hotel. President Edwin U. Curtis, ex-mayor of Boston, was in the chair. William E. Spear, '97, gave a short smoker talk about a trip to Palestine. F. P. Baxter, '98, essayist, read and reported the condition of military and athletic affairs at the college. Informal addresses and songs followed.

Boston Sunday Herald: "The friends of Miss Harriet Shaw, the harpist, will be grieved to hear that she has met with a painful accident. She struck her harp case in the dark, breaking her eyeglass in her eye and injuring it badly. Miss Shaw has been at Dr. Baker Finty's for the last fortnight with two nurses, and three oculists almost constantly in attendance. Dr. Derby is giving a little more encouraging opinion than at first was thought possible."

Although of late the local car service will go into effect beginning this morning. Half hour service will be given in the forenoon from 6.15 to 11.15, after which 15 minute service will be maintained until 5.15 p. m., when the half hour service will be resumed until 10.15, when the last cars for all points will leave the square. During the periods in which the half hour service is being used cars will leave the ends of lines on the hour and half hour and West Market square at 15 minutes to and 15 minutes past the hour.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Jane Carey took place from the family residence in East Hampden Sunday afternoon at one o'clock. There was a very large attendance of the friends and neighbors of the deceased. Prayer and remarks were made by Rev. Mr. Hislop, of this city. The bearers were Messrs. G. Hunting, H. A. Meaus, Henry Wheeler and John Holland. Mr. Carey was a man much respected by his neighbors and by all with whom he came in contact and in his death East Hampden loses one of the oldest and most prominent citizens. At the time he and his father owned a large portion of the land where East Hampden now stands. Mr. Carey took part in the Apostook war. He is survived by three sisters, his wife having died a number of years ago. A. S. Chick, of this city, had charge of the funeral arrangements.

A free night school is now open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday nights at 31 Mercantile square, in the rooms formerly occupied by "The West Side Mission." Instruction may be had in following branches: Reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, geography, grammar and history. On the above evenings the school is open from 7 to 9 o'clock. A class in singing will be added to the school this evening. The class will be taught on Monday evenings from 7.30 till 8.30 o'clock. Instruction in all the above subjects is offered free to all, regardless of what nationality, color, age or religious belief. The school is supported wholly by free-will contributions. For further information regarding the school call on or address the superintendent, Arthur Jordan, 31 Mercantile square, Bangor.

The work of filling in the wide space between the old water line and the new wharf just below the toll bridge that has been built by the Maine Central railroad to handle the product of the new lumber mill at Ashland is steadily going on and a large portion of the space is now filled. The work that has been going on here and all over the Exchange street yard of the railroad has, or will when it is completed, have made about as much of a change as it is possible to make in a locality. By blasting away the edge on the westerly side and building the new wharf on the water side the width of the previously narrow yard has been more than doubled and the putting in of the new iron span at the approach to the toll bridge gives room for six or seven tracks between it instead of the two that were there. This not only means the handling of the business of that new mill but greatly adds to the facilities for taking care of the increasing general business. The new wharf will be all ready for use with the opening of navigation in the spring.

Interview With Irving B. Hay.

In its account of the famous Brain trial in Boston, the Boston Sunday Herald had the following regarding Mr. Irving B. Hay, a Maine State College graduate and a former member of the Bangor base ball team:

"Down on Cambridge street, near North Russell street, there is a small but busy grocery store, conducted by a representative of the Ray family of Harrington, Me. His name is Irving B. Ray, and Laura Ray, who married Capt. Charles Nash, and with him was murdered on board the barkentine Herbert Fuller, was his sister.

"It was a little after 6 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a friend of Mr. Ray rushed into the store and breathlessly announced that Thomas Brain had been pronounced the murderer.

"There was no note of jubilation in Mr. Ray's voice last evening, when he talked with a reporter for The Herald. He felt that the verdict was just and deserved, but he could not rejoice, because the life of a man was to be snuffed out. That could not restore his sister's life. He said:

"I cannot say the verdict was as I expected it to be. I thought—I was almost sure—there would be a disagreement. I did not think they could convict the man. But they did it, and I think they acted justly. I cannot think that any other man than Brain could have been the murderer."

Mr. Ray, by telegraph, notified the members of the family in Harrington of the result of the trial, soon after verifying the first report.

His lecture this evening will be both entertaining and instructive and a large audience will doubtless hear him.

VIRGINIA'S ICE MINE.

One of the greatest curiosities in the United States, can the world, perhaps, is the wonderful ledge of ice which exists even in the midst of the hottest summer, in Scott county, Va. This natural icehouse is situated on the north side of Stone mountain and about six miles from the mouth of a small stream known as Stony creek. The marvel is said to have been known to at least one of the early settlers, a Mr. Dandridge, who, it is alleged, discovered it while deer hunting away back in 1830. Owing to the fact that the land on which it was situated could not be bought, Mr. Dandridge positively refused to tell of the whereabouts of the ice ledge, and only visited the place when it was absolutely necessary to obtain a supply to be used in case of sickness.

The old man died many years ago, and from that time until 1883 the location of Dandridge's ice mine was unknown, the old gentleman having never even taken his own family into the secret.

In the year last mentioned, however, a party of herb diggers visited the unfrequented region contiguous to Stone mountain and were fortunate enough to rediscover the lost ice mine.

During two or three months in the middle of summer the ice is only protected from the sun's rays by a thick growth of moss. The formation of the ice layer is similar to that of a coal vein, being thin in some places and thicker in others, the average thickness being about four feet. Persons of some scientific attainments who have visited the place for the purpose of studying the wonder say that it has the appearance of having been there since the time of the ice age, which the geologists talk so much about. Another plausible theory is that somewhere beneath the bed is situated a great natural laboratory where ether is constantly formed and expelled, and that the process of freezing is now constantly going on. Whatever view is taken it is one of the greatest natural wonders the state affords.—St. Louis Republic.

Deer Killing Season Ended.

At numerous stations game was killed but not shipped. The hunters came in teams and hauled it away. At Milo 50 deer and five moose were killed, and at Alton seven deer were killed, by local sportsmen. At Kenduskeag from Worcester a big moose were killed and not shipped. General Passenger Agent Houghton directs to learn the total number of deer killed on the B. & A. the past season and he has sent to some 400 guides the following letter:

"We are desirous of getting at the amount of game killed in the territory served by our railroad during the three open months of October, November and December, 1896. With this in view I would be pleased to have you keep an accurate account of the game killed by yourself and the parties you have guided and on the first day of January, 1897, fill out the enclosed blank and mail to me. This information will be eagerly sought after by the sportsmen of the country and will advertise you among thousands of sportsmen with whom we are in correspondence.

"It is our intention to mail this letter, together with the blank report, to every guide in our territory. We may, however, reach all of the guides, and in case you know of one who has not received a blank, kindly ask him to give the information by letter, which will answer every purpose."

Harper's Weekly

With the close of 1896 Harper's Weekly will have lived forty years. In that period it has paid within all the resources of its power at the time to the chronicle of events of the most interesting and important period in the history of the country, and it has supplied readers the decisive judgments of a clear, able, and fearless journal upon the events and tendencies of the time. In the coming year it will be no exception to the rule. Its design will be to give a full and fair presentation of the news of the world, and to be a trustworthy guide in the formation of opinion upon the events of the time. Its political course will be independent, and its editorial pages will continue to be the source of such comment upon the events of the time as may be found most helpful to the reader. It is impossible to anticipate all the events that the Weekly will contain during the year 1897. It will try to be ready to record what is to happen in the world, what improvements in government are to be made, what advances of the people are to be secured, what is to be the outcome of the continuing struggle between the spirit of war and peace, what is to happen in the far East, what is to be the state of European politics hence, what new marvels of art company is to be revealed, or what new delight in the fine arts and letters, for the Weekly is to be a pictorial record of all this.

Cartoons will continue to be a feature.

Special Stories. A New England story by Miss Mary E. Wilkins will begin in January. Article of a Greek of thirty years ago, by the Hon. E. P. Bacon, the author of "Dogs," will follow. A sequel to "The House Beautiful," by Mr. and Mrs. Schuyler Crowninshield, will be by Mr. Percy Newell.

More Short Stories will appear in the Weekly than it has been possible to publish during the Departments: Mr. W. D. Howells' "Editor's Literary" have been among the most popular features of periodical literature. Mr. E. S. Martin, and others will contribute discussions of what is going on in "The Busy World." "Amateur Sport" will remain the most important department of its kind in the country.

The Weekly will continue to present to its readers the world's news most interesting to Americans, to make important advances in both its literary and artistic features, and to retain for itself the leading place in the illustrated journalism of the world.

Newspapers are not to copy this advertisement without the express order of Harper & Brothers.

THE BILLET POOL.

Effort to Place it in Position to Dictate Again.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 1. A special committee appointed at the last meeting of the American Bessemer Association, to figure out a plan by which the defunct pool may be again placed on its feet as the great dictator of prices in the iron and steel world, has completed its report, which will be presented at a meeting of the members to be held Monday, probably in Pittsburg. The identity of the committee is not known.

The plan is that the larger concerns will buy up the allotment of orders and smaller mills and pay the owners to practically retire from the billet manufacture business with expectation of pocketing dividends that they will receive from the concerns that will then make billets for the whole country. In this respect the billet pool will emulate the methods of the nail pool with more hopes of success. The consummation of the project means that the trade in billets and finished products will be confined to the larger producers or the concentration of production placed in the hands of a few large firms who will then control the production, set the price and sell are with idle mill owners.

THE NEW YORK BANKS.

Statement Showing Increase in Specie Reserve.

The New York banks in their statement showing the condition of the banks for the week ending January 1 show that the banks have gained $2,131,000 in specie and have increased their surplus reserve $1,000,000. The increase in specie reserve has caused a gain in surplus reserve of $1,000,000 and a total surplus of $3,000,000. The increase in specie is due to the return of $1,000,000 from the Sub-Treasury and the balance from the interior. The loan exhibit shows a decrease in loans of $1,000,000 and a decrease in deposits of $1,000,000. The banks now hold $3,000,000 in excess of the 25 per cent rule.

LYNCHING FEARED.

Brutal Murder of a Tennessee Landlord.

Milan, Tenn., Jan. 1. Six negroes are under arrest for the brutal murder of Captain H. P. Miller, proprietor of the Southern Pacific hotel, whose body was found yesterday in an unused barroom with his head beaten to a pulp. The negroes are heavily guarded, but if proof of their guilt is obtained they will undoubtedly be lynched, as 2,000 people are at fever heat over the affair. Miller was beaten over the head with brass knuckles and the cash drawer robbed of its contents.

MADE A PROTEST.

Proposed Reduction in Wages Angered Men.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 1. Notices were posted at the Homestead Steel Works of the Carnegie Company that a readjustment would be made in the wages of the employes in two open hearth mills which will affect the tonnage men, and probably amount to 20 to 30 per cent. reduction in wages. The workmen were angered and sent a committee to present their protests to the general superintendent who told them he would lay the matter before the company's officials.

BOUND OVER.

Charles F. Philbrook Arrested on the Charge of Stealing Peter O'Loughlin's Pig.

Friday noon Peter O'Loughlin, from whose barn a pig was stolen recently, after being killed, while in concealment near the residence of Charles F. Philbrook, on Stillwater avenue, saw Philbrook come out of the house with a basket, go to some bushes and place the contents of the basket there.

When Philbrook went back to the house O'Loughlin went to the spot and found a hind quarter of a pig, which he claims is part of the animal which he lost. He sent for the police and Deputy Chief Bowen and Patrolman Knalde went to the place. They found the hind quarter of pig and the basket on the banking at Philbrook's house. It contained a telltale pig's bristle. They arrested Philbrook and he was before the Municipal Court, being bound over to the February term of the Supreme Judicial Court under $300 bonds. He failed to get bail.

The "Arabian (K)Nights" who were arrested on Thursday night on Hancock street for gambling were before the court yesterday and each was fined $3 and costs.

The Philadelphia North American cites a case in Kansas as affording an excellent illustration of what the people escaped when they refused to have anything to do with the Populist crowd headed by Bryan. Lane county, Kansas, spoilt a number of Populist administrators. By their peculiar methods of administering the affairs of the county, it wasn't long before they had heaped an indebtedness of $125,000 upon the people. The indebtedness was in the shape of bonds, which were sold to eastern investors. Well, the other day the Lane County Commissioners got together, and decided that something had to be done, they declared the county insolvent, stopped the payment of interest on its bonds and repudiated every penny of the debt. That's Populism. That's the way they do things in Kansas. It would be the same if the Pops were in control of the affairs of the Union. They would repudiate with greater glee, then, because the debt would be larger. It is a principle of Populism that the most effective way to get rid of a public debt is to repudiate it. A private debt, according to their doctrine, is to be settled in fifty-cent dollars. When the Lane County Commissioners took this action they should have telegraphed to Lincoln as follows: "Have just repudiated $125,000 worth. Hurrah for 1900!" It will please the man there to know that his idea's still live.

Tennessee is to have another Gubernatorial contest, but it will differ from that of two years ago, in the main feature that the Republicans will do the contesting. Ever since the election in November last, which resulted in the choice on the face of the returns of Robert L. Taylor, the Democratic candidate, by a plurality of over 8,000, a contest by the Republicans has been expected, the latter asserting that gross frauds were practiced by Democratic election officers in West Tennessee. Since the election the Republican state executive committee has been making a quiet investigation, and while it is not yet complete, the committee believes that it has unearthed enough fraud in West Tennessee counties to show that G. N. Tillman, their candidate for Governor, was elected by a plurality of 1,000. A contest was started upon this showing of the returns. It also is claimed that the investigation has developed conspiracy, [illegible] of ballot boxes, ballot box stuffing, [illegible] and other election frauds of a character to [illegible] the election of Governor Taylor. The Republican committee will be ready to present its case when the Legislature shall order a hearing.

Chicago, Jan. 1.—Members of the executive central committee of the national party and the broad gauge Prohibitionists, arrived at the Sherman House yesterday, to attend a meeting called for the purpose of perfecting plans for pushing the organization. L. B. Logan, of Alliance, O., chairman of the executive committee, and Mrs. Helen M. Gougar, of Indianapolis, were among those who arrived.

When asked regarding the reported negotiations for union of the two prohibition parties and the adjudication of the old party's national executive committee being called to meet at the Sherman House, Wednesday, Secretary Thomas, of the national party executive committee, said:

"The old lines have met and adjourned, and have decided to go along in their old way. I have talked with leaders of the national party and there is no disposition to abandon the fight or make overtures for union with anybody."

SUIT COMMENCED.

To Dissolve Stock Exchange Under Anti-Trust Laws.

Topeka, Kas., Jan. 1.—Suit has been commenced in the United States circuit court here to dissolve the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange. The petition set forth charges that the object of the organization is to control the charges for the handling, selling and buying of live stock at the Kansas City stock yards and that its existence represents trade combines against public policy and is a violation of the federal anti-trust laws.

The petition alleges that the live stock exchange and the stock yards company work together and John Holmes is a gamin appearing in name only in that it is possible for any other than a member of the exchange to do business in Kansas City markets and by placing obstructions and embargo on the marketing of all stock shipped from the western states to the Kansas City market which is not consigned to the Kansas City stock yards company, or to the defendants or other members of the exchange, who alone are permitted by said stock yards company to transact business at its yards. The application for a temporary injunction in the suit will be heard before Judge Foster of the federal court on Jan. 11.

THE MILES CASE.

Suit Brought by Boston Safe Deposit and Trust Co.

Boston, Jan. 1.—The Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co. has brought in the state supreme court a bill in equity against its defaulting treasurer, Frank P. Miles, and Richardson, Hill & Co. to have Miles' interest in a number of shares of American Sugar Refining Co. stock, held by the bankers as collateral applied to the payment of an indebtedness of $25,000 due from Miles to the plaintiff.

The stock was bought by the bankers for Miles, who it is alleged, borrowed a portion of the purchase money from the banking firm, which now holds the stock as security for the money advanced. The trust company wants the stock sold and Miles' interest in the proceeds turned over to them. An order of notice was issued returnable Jan. 12.

CHARGED WITH FRAUD.

Frederick Brown Placed Under Arrest by Postoffice Authorities.

Boston, Jan. 1.—Frederick Brown, aged 52 years old, has been placed under arrest here by the post office authorities, who claim that he is responsible for the fraudulent business methods of the Union Drug Co., of which concern they say he was the proprietor. Brown was taken before U. S. Commissioner Hale today and held in $1,000 until Jan. 7.

Brown is charged with securing merchandise from various firms throughout the country, principally drug houses, without paying for it and disposing of the goods to his own advantage. The inspector who arrested Brown has received over 100 complaints from firms that have been victimized.

The charge against the prisoner is that of using the mails in a scheme to defraud.

Bangor Star

Some people think money is a greater power than love. Oh! What a mistake! See how the great money kings are controlled by the little boy Cupid! See how the great soldiers and men of power are twisted around his little fingers!

A woman's most precious possession is the capacity for awakening pure and noble love. More potent than wit or intellect is the womanly capacity for happy wifehood and motherhood.

A woman who is weak or diseased in the special organism of her sex is deprived of the power and prestige which naturally belong to her. Such troubles are not a necessity. Perfect health and strength of the feminine organism is insured by proper care and the aids afforded by enlightened medical science. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription cures all weaknesses and diseases of woman's special organism.

For nearly 30 years Dr. Pierce has been chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, of Buffalo, N. Y. No other physician has had a more extensive practice or greater success in the treatment of women's diseases. No other such perfect and scientific remedy for these ailments has ever been devised. It has restored health, strength and womanly power to tens of thousands of women.

Women who would understand their own powers and possibilities should read Doctor Pierce's thousand-page illustrated book, "The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser." It is the most interesting and enlightening book of the kind ever published. A paper-bound copy will be sent absolutely free to any one sending 21 one-cent stamps to pay the cost of mailing only. Address, World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. For a handsome cloth-bound copy send 31 stamps.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Many Distinguished People Present—Prevailing Floral Decorations.

Washington, Jan. 1.—The annual New Year's reception at the White House took place today according to long established custom. It constituted the yearly ordeal of the President and the mistress of the White House, for they must shake hands with many hundreds, several thousands, in fact, of their fellow citizens and a large number of distinguished foreigners.

As on last New Year's day the crowd that participated in and witnessed the reception was very large. It was the last function of the sort in which Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland will figure as the principal characters.

The interior of the mansion had been lavishly decorated for the occasion. A suggestion of the tropics was given by a survey of the decorative arrangement. In the blue room, the official chamber of the White House, with its delicately tapestried walls, the artistic effect was well carried out. It was in this apartment that the President, Mrs. Cleveland and the receiving party stood.

The red room held a profusion of tall rubber plants and palms. Jardinieres of Greenish Linco holding growing plants contrasted well with the permanent hangings of the green room. In the grand corridor leading from the east room past the reception chambers to the portrait gallery, palms adorned the space that could be obtained there, was necessary to accommodate the constantly moving throng.

Those who paid their respects to the President and Mrs. Cleveland passed out of the receiving chamber into the green room and thence into the spacious corridor, that scene of so many historic occurrences.

Six hundred people is the ordinary capacity of this apartment. Today it was filled to an uncomfortable degree with foreign envoys, officers of the army and navy, high judicial functionaries, senators, representatives and many civilians with a large number of ladies. They were not so crowded, however as to be unable to see and appreciate the floral beauty displayed.

Eleven o'clock was the hour set for the beginning of the reception. Before that time members of the diplomatic corps, cabinet ministers, attaches and their wives and daughters had begun to arrive and were ushered into the east room, where they awaited the signal to proceed along the line. Out in the public lobby the United States Marine band waited the signal to play. Suddenly the instruments burst forth into "Hail to the Chief."

Down the private staircase came the President, Mrs. Cleveland, the members of the cabinet and their ladies, Justice John M. Wilson, U. S. Commissioner of public buildings and grounds and master of ceremonies, Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, Vice-President and Mrs. Stevenson, Sec'y and Mrs. Olney, Sec'y and Mrs. Carlisle, Attorney-General and Mrs. Harmon, Postmaster-General and Mrs. Wilson, Sec'y and Miss Herbert, Sec'y and Mrs. Lamont, Sec'y and Miss Morton, and Sec'y and Mrs. Francis. The impressive procession passed along the corridors to the blue room and took their places, the President and Mrs. Cleveland standing with Secretary Olney and Col. Wilson on their right and the ladies forming a line across the apartment.

The Cabinet officers modestly dropped to the rear and entered into conversation with some of the ladies who composed their contingent, commonly designated "behind the line."

Among the ladies behind the line were Mrs. Elkins, wife of Senator Elkins; Mrs. Gear, wife of Senator Gear, Mrs. Gordon, wife of Senator Gordon; Mrs. Hale, wife of Senator Hale, Mrs. Lodge, wife of Senator Lodge, Mrs. Reed, wife of Speaker Reed, Mrs. Thurber, wife of Private Secretary Thurber, Mrs. Holmes, Conrad, wife of the solicitor general, Mrs. Eckels, wife of the comptroller of the currency, Mrs. Miles, wife of Gen. Miles and Mrs. Sawtelle, wife of Gen. Sawtelle.

REAR END COLLISION.

Two Lives Lost in a Freight Train Accident.

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 1.—A rear end collision occurred this morning between two freight trains on the Central Hudson, R. R., five miles west of this city, in which two men were killed and one badly injured. All available help was sent to the scene of the wreck from this city.

THE BRAIN TRIAL.

The Famous Case Went to the Jury Friday.

Hear Concluded His Plea and the Judge Charged the Jury.

Boston, Jan. 1.—Thomas M. Brain wore an anxious look as he came into court this morning. There is no mistaking the fact that he is undergoing a severe mental strain, and that he feels it more keenly today than he has at any previous period. In the race for places in the court room the women seemed to have come out ahead, fully four-fifths of the spectators being of the fair sex.

District Attorney Tom Josiah Ely resumed immediately after the judges had taken their seats. He resumed Brain in his beginning, first calling attention to the dusky color of the negro, Spencer, and saying that Brain allowed none of that man's courage.

Spencer was not a man to chase the negro of a people, he did not ask whether there were any free negroes on board, nor did he make any signals of distress. He went to work and did just what Brain ought to have done. He went to see what was the matter on board, who had napped to these people, and how they had been killed. He did not know how many of the crew were aft.

He knew that only Lester Monks and Charley Brown could be aft of him, beside the dead ladies. He went straight down there, went to Frank Robins, say he captain on the floor, went around and got a revolver and we caught into that cabin.

Having assured the jury that if they did Brain may avoid a murder on the high seas it would go forever unpunished, Mr. Hear asked why Brain had put up that story about the second man being forward. That one statement was enough to convict Brain, because he knew that man was down aft. And why did Brain not bring that matter forward, why did he leave it in Lester Monks' room?

It was for the mighty good reason because if the coward had brought Lester Monks forward he might have fighting on the hard body of the dead second mate and he would have started an inquiry.

Mr. Hear went on to describe the movements of the captain and his wife in the cave of the murder. He dwelt at length on the character that Monks had concocted for Spencer, contrasting the bad character with Brain.

He defended Brown and Monks from the imputations cast upon them by Mr. Carter, and contended that their evidence was truthful and sufficient to convict the prisoner of the murder. Brown's story, he said, not force out in any essential particular. He joined the alleged murder savage, and said the sailors had not exhausted him, and had no reason why they to testify against Brain, other than what they knew.

The fishing of the wheel vinegar bottle had 20 months, Mr. Hear pointed out, Mr. Hear said that the other on board, did not hitch the wheel while they were fighting the negro.

Mr. Hear refused to what he called the antiquated sea captain of the olden time, who had fought before he would surrender, to the effect that the other could be hitched. He claimed that the captain was the only man who would take the risk of fastening the wheel and Brown would never have done it with Brain sitting on the rail.

The attorney is speaking of Brown calling Brain a coward was natural. Wouldn't you say so of one of these people, he asked, "if you had seen them horribly murdered?"

Mr. Hear spoke for upwards of half an hour and closed with an eloquent appeal to the jurors to do their duty under their oaths and return a verdict of guilty against Brain.

At his conclusion a recess of five minutes was taken and then Judge Webb delivered the charge to the jury.

Some little time was consumed in putting in the charge, it was 1.25 when the jury retired. The court adjourned until 3 o'clock.

In his charge Judge Webb said the jury must decide whether a verdict upon the evidence submitted and must not be influenced by any argument of counsel only as such argument is supported by the evidence.

"Let not the world talked of sanctions overrules, for they are not sufficient," he said. Confirming Judge Webb explained what constituted murder. Malice, he said, is an essential part and the act must be done willfully and with intent.

The only question for the jury had to decide, he said, is as to the death of Capt. Crowell, whether it had been caused by the prisoner's act. If so, the jury must find the prisoner guilty of murder in the first degree. If they should find that the act was not the cause of the death of Crowell, they should find the prisoner guilty of manslaughter

A woman's most precious possession is the capacity for awakening pure and noble love. More potent than wit or intellect is the womanly capacity for happy wifehood and motherhood.

WASHINGTON NEWS.

Many Distinguished People in Attendance—Prosse Floral Decorations.

Washington, Jan. 1.—The annual New Year's reception at the White House took place today according to long established custom. It constituted the yearly ordeal of the President and the mistress of the White House for they must shake hands with many hundreds, several thousands in fact, of their fellow citizens and a large number of visiting island foreigners.

As on last New Year's day the crowd that participated in and witnessed the reception was very large. It was the last function of the sort in which Mr. and Mrs. Clevland will figure as the principal characters.

The interior of the mansion had been lavishly decorated for the occasion. A suggestion of the trophies was given by a survey of the decorative arrangement in the blue room, the official chamber of the White House, with its delicately tinted wall, the artistic effect was well carried out. It was in this apartment that the President, Mrs. Cleveland and the receiving party stood.

The red room held a profusion of tall rubber plants and palms. Jardinieres of Greenhill Lings holding growing plants contributed well with the permanent hanging of the green room. In the broad corridor leading from the east room past the reception chambers to the private apartments the western end a few rubber trees and palms suffered for decorative purposes for all the space that could be obtained there was necessary to accommodate the constantly moving throng.

Those who paid their respects to the President and Mrs. Cleveland passed out of the receiving chamber into the green room and thence into the spacious east room. The scene of so many historic occurrences.

Six hundred people in the ordinary capacity of the apartment. Today it was filled to an uncomfortable degree with foreign envoys, officers of the army and navy, high judicial functionaries, senators, representatives and many females with a large number of ladies. They were not so crowded, however as to be unable to see and appreciate the floral display.

Eleven o'clock was the hour set for the beginning of the reception. Before that time members of the diplomatic corps, ambassadors, ministers, attaches with their wives and daughters had begun to arrive and were ushered into the red room, where they awaited the signal to pass along the line. Out in the public lobby the United States Marine band whiled the about to play. Suddenly the instruments burst forth into "Hail to the Chief."

Down the private staircase came the President, Mrs. Cleveland, the members of the cabinet and their ladies led by Col. John M. Wilson, U. S. A., commissioner of public buildings and grounds in charge of ceremonies. Mr. and Mrs. Cleveland, Vice-President and Mrs. Stevenson, Secy and Mrs. Olney, Secy and Mrs. Carlisle, Attorney-General and Mrs. Harmon, Postmaster General and Mrs. Wilson, Secy and Miss Herbert, Secy and Mrs. Lamont, Secy and Mrs. Morton, Sec. Secy and Mrs. Francis, at first in procession, passed along the corridors to the blue room and took their places, the President and Mrs. Cleveland alone and with Secretary Olney and Col. Wilson at their right and the ladies forming a line across the apartment.

The cabinet officers modestly dropped to the rear and entered into conversation with some of the ladies who formed the last contingent, commonly designated behind the line.

Among the ladies behind the line were Mrs. Elkins, wife of Senator Elkins, Mrs. Gear, wife of Senator Gear; Mrs. Gordon, wife of Senator Gordon, Mrs. Hale, wife of Senator Hale, Mrs. Lodge, wife of Senator Lodge, Mrs. Reed, wife of Speaker Reed, Mrs. Tarbet, wife of Private Secretary Thurber, Mrs. Holmes, Conrad, wife of the solicitor general, Mrs. Bacon, wife of the comptroller of the currency, Mrs. Miles, wife of Gen. Miles and Mrs. Sickels, wife of Gen. Sickels.

REAR END COLLISION.

Two Lives Lost in a Freight Train Accident.

Schenectady, N. Y., Jan. 1.—A rear end collision occurred this morning between two freight trains on the Central Hudson R. R., five miles west of this city, and resulted in the death of John Cook and Charles Vogel, both of Albany. The accident occurred on a sharp curve where the forward train had been stopped by a block signal and there was no flagman to signal the approaching train.

Cook, the fireman, was shoveling coal at the time and he was found buried in the debris of the engine which was overturned in the ditch.

Vogel, front brakeman of the rear train, was jammed between two cars. A number of cars were derailed and caught fire. The damage will amount to $50,000.

THE ERA TRIAL.

The Famous Case Went to the Jury Friday.

Mr. Hoar Concluded His Plea and the Judge Charged the Jury.

Boston, Jan. 1.—Thomas M. Brown wore an anxious look as he came into court this morning. There is no mistaking the fact that he is undergoing a severe mental strain, and that its effects are commencing to be seen. Brown looks thinner today than he has at any preceding period. In the race for places in the court room the women seemed to have come out ahead, fully four-fifths of the spectators being of the fair sex.

District Attorney Hoar resumed his argument immediately after the judges had taken their seats. He recalled Brown to be testifying, first calling attention to the lucky conduct of the negro, Spencer, and saying that Brown owed none of that man's courage.

Spencer was not a man to obey the orders of people, he did not ask whether there were any fire hoses on board, nor did he make any signals of distress. He went to work in a manful fashion that would have done Brown credit, if he had done it. He went to see what was the matter on board, what had happened to these people, and how they had been killed. He did not know how many of the crew were off.

He knew that only Lester Monks and Charley Brown could be left of him, beside the dead bodies. He went straight down there, went to Frank Leland, saw the captain on the floor, went around and got a revolver and went straight into that cabin.

Having asked the jury that, if they left Brown one avid of murder on the high seas would go forever unpunished, Mr. Hoar asked why Brown had put up that story about the second mate being forward. That one statement was enough to convict him, because he knew that man was dead as a nit. And why did Brown and bring that known forward, why did he leave it in Lester Monk's cabin?

It was for the mighty good reason because if he brought it back, Lester Monks' eyes might have lighted on the hand by of the dead second mate, and that would have started an inquiry.

Mr. Hoar went on to describe the movements of the captain and his wife in the eve of the murders. He dwelt at length on the charge that Monks had committed perjury, contradicting the passenger with Brown.

He defended Brown and Monks from the impeachment brought against them by Mr. Carter, and contended that their evidence was truthful, and sufficient to warrant the conviction of the prisoner.

Brown's story, he said, was not borne out in any exact detail particular. He took up the alleged discrepancies, and said the sailors had not exhausted any, and had left a degree of doubt when every reasonable other thing was that they knew.

The lashing of the wheel was done long 20 minutes after the court opened and Mr. Hoar said that the men on board did not lash it to wheel while they were stealing the papers.

Mr. Hoar referred to what he called the antipathetic sea captain's of the defense, who had left the sea before he was born, as having testified that the wheel could be lashed. He claimed that the captain was the only man who would take the risk of leaving the wheel and Brown would never have done it right from starting on a piratical voyage.

The attorney, in speaking of Brown being violent, said it was natural. Wouldn't you accusations of these people, he asked. If you had seen them horribly murdered?

Mr. Hoar spoke for upwards of half an hour and closed with an eloquent appeal to the jurors to do their duty under their oaths and return a verdict of guilty against Brown.

At 12 o'clock in a recess of five minutes was taken and then Judge Webb delivered the charge to the jury.

Some time after 1 o'clock he concluded the portion of the charge and it was 1.25 when the jury retired. The court adjourned until 3 o'clock.

In discharging Judge Webb said the jury must determine their verdict upon the evidence submitted and must not be influenced by any argument or comment only as such argument is supported by the evidence.

"Let not the much talked of suspicions given you, for they are not sufficient," he said. Continuing Judge Webb explained what constituted murder. Malice, he said, is an essential part and the act must be done wilfully and with intent.

The only question the jury had to decide, he said, is as to the death of Capt. Nichols. They are simply to determine whether or not Brown killed him. Judge Webb said they should not consider anything in the nature of an admission of Thomas Brown against himself unless they got it from his own lips.

Judge Webb went through the evidence clearly in detail. In some instances he picked to pieces Brown's testimony and said: "If you accept without question, it has great weight but in the manner in which it has been assailed you must carefully consider it." He thought credence should be given the testimony of the sea captains, however, adding that they left the sea several years ago.

"There is the question of motive," Judge Webb continued. "The government has not proven a motive, but there is no doubt that some one on board the ship committed the crime." He declared that the theory of the accord mate's doing the killing was too absurd to be considered. As to Brown the judge said no one can tell or interpret his action before, during or after the tragedy.

Judge Webb read a definition of "Reasonable doubt" and admonished the jury to take time and render a just verdict.

Eastport Sentinel: Would it not be a good idea at this time to inaugurate a movement to raise some money for the public library by means of an entertainment? Mr. Shea, the manager of the Opera House, has signified his willingness to donate the use of the house for the purpose. It is needless to say there we have the necessary talent right among us, whose services could easily be obtained, and as the purpose is one that would be of mutual advantage to the large number of borrowers from the library, a large audience would be assured. The institution needs money—a great deal besides the city appropriations; books cost money, and they are constantly wearing out, and need replenishing; the librarian must be paid, and the building warmed and lighted, all of which is a continual outlay, and the main source of income is voluntary subscription.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 1.—State Senator Henry C. Condensed Despatches.

News reached Raleigh, N. C., Thursday of a lynching a mile from Gibson's station, Richmond county, Christmas night. The man lynched was Jim Green, a negro, a new comer in the neighborhood. Nothing was known of him except that he was of bad reputation and had served time in the penitentiary. Late Christmas night a number of white men on horse back surrounded Green's house and made him go with them a half mile down the road, when they drew revolvers and riddled him with bullets. The lynchers were unmasked and were strangers. It is supposed they came from South Carolina and lynched Green for some crime committed in that State.

ANOTHER PROPOSITION

Made by Parker & Peakes for a Shoe Factory Here

On the Same Terms as Those of the Boston Company.

The committee of the City Government of the proposed shoe factory met at the Bangor House on Friday morning to hear other propositions upon the new shoe factory. M. C. S. Pearl, president of the local board of trade, Mr. G. W. Parker, Mr. John Parker, and Mr. Henry Peakes, of Parker & Peakes, the Bangor shoe manufacturers, and their attorney, C. F. Woodard, Esq., were present.

Mr. Woodard spoke for Parker & Peakes and said that the Parker & Peakes firm would be glad to take the new factory to be built by the city for the shoe firm, that they would double their business and do all that anybody else would do. They merely wanted to have equal terms with others, though they felt that they should really be entitled to the preference, other things being equal.

Mr. Woodard said that his clients would take the factory as the Boston firm had proposed to occupy it—in readiness to put in the machinery as they would put in as good machinery as it would be possible to obtain.

In reply to a question, Mr. G. W. Parker stated that his company had been working at a disadvantage for some time; they make two grades of goods, which should be manufactured separately. An enlargement of business has been in contemplation for some time. Mr. Parker said that if another firm should come in and occupy the Hampden road shoe offered to the Boston firm he could not put in a new factory of his own. His firm had to have railway conveniences and had, some years ago, when the present factory on Oak street was built, tried to buy the lot on Main street where the new factory is to be built.

No enlargement can be made on the present site, for lack of room and, too, the lack of railway conveniences.

Mr. Peakes said that the Boston firm would make the same shoe that was being turned out by Parker & Peakes, and that the result would be detrimental. Parker & Peakes and the Jones people have been in competition in the market for the Mackay satchel and the Goodyear welt shoe, which are made by both firms.

Mr. Parker says that he should like to state before adjourning, his business after the Jones people come here. The new factory would probably double the Parker & Peakes business. The number of employes ought to be doubled.

During the past year 400 people have found employment in the present factory.

The mayor stated the proposition of the Boston firm which has been given in The Whig. Mr. Parker stated that that proposition was satisfactory to him and to the other members of his firm.

Mr. Woodard said that the firm would not guarantee a certain amount of business, but that the machinery would be put in and the plant operated.

President Pearl of the Board of Trade said that that body was not at all opposed to the new factory. As far as he knew the members of the Board were favorable to any showement for the growth of Bangor. The Board would gladly cooperate with the city officials and with all other persons interested in bringing any new industry to Bangor. Mr. Pearl spoke of the starting of Parker & Peakes in Bangor and the early trade. He thought that the city could make satisfactory arrangements with a local firm than with one of a foreign nature.

Mr. Parker could not promise that the factory would be run on full time constantly, as work depended on orders, but his firm could give as good a guarantee as any firm.

Mr. Pearl told of the history of Parker & Peakes who started in Dedham years ago. They moved to Brewer and thence to Bangor, on Pearl street. Four years later they moved to Exchange street in the Ayer building, where they remained until they built and entered their new Oak street factory. A year ago they made an addition 40 feet square to the factory.

Mr. Woodard made the proposition of Parker & Peakes in the form of a letter to the committee as follows:

Bangor, January, 1897.

To the Committee of the City Government on Shoe Factory:

The undersigned, Parker & Peakes of said city, respectfully ask to be considered as applicants for the use of the proposed shoe factory under consideration.

If a building can be constructed substantially as outlined in the discussion before your committee and published as indicated they will take such building for a term of five years, equip it with modern machinery, enlarge their business and operate such new factory to the fullest extent possible under prevailing business conditions.

In making this proposition we do not propose to suspend or curtail our business now carried on in our own factory, but to extend and enlarge our business, so as to effectually use the new factory and employ additional help therein to the extent of its capacity.

In making this proposition, we understand that we are to have the use of the factory for a term of five years without rent, and at the expiration of that time to have the preference upon equal terms for the future use of the factory.

No exemption or abatement of taxation is asked for or expected.

Parker & Peakes.

On Friday morning the Board of County Commissioners met in their room at the Court House building and organized. Mr. Andrew Hammond, of Milford, the oldest member in time of service, was chosen chairman and Mr. L. C. Whitten, of Carmel, the new member, became one of the board.

AMUSEMENTS

Robert Mantell

Robert Mantell, the famous actor of the romantic drama and his excellent company began his Opera House engagement yesterday afternoon presenting 'Monbars,' a well known play, which is of great interest from beginning to end and which gives plenty of opportunity for effective acting. Mr. Mantell and his finely chosen support fully give to the requirements of the play and bring out its many striking points with remarkably good success.

Mr. Mantell's 'Monbars' was splendidly portrayed. His fine presence, graceful action and rich, deep voice added to his thorough histrionic ability and most intelligent conception of the role, make his portrayal a very strong one in every way. His work was artistically appreciated by the audience, which never flagged in its interest and gave several encore calls.

Miss Behrens is splendidly qualified by nature, study and experience to be the leading lady of the company and this was again demonstrated yesterday by her portrayal of Diane. The role was charmingly taken and she shared the honors with Mr. Mantell. Miss Marcelli, Miss Minnie Monk, Mr. Denison, Mr. J. N. Hoyt and Mr. F. A. Berle were all well adapted to their roles and gave a well balanced support.

In the evening 'The Face in the Moonlight' was the play and it was attended by a fair sized audience which was most enjoyably entertained by the fine presentation. As in all of Mr. Mantell's performances close attention was paid to details of costuming and setting, so that the presentation was complete in its effect. The play is a strong one in construction and contains many impressive situations.

Mr. Mantell assumed a dual role, 'Victor Ambrose and Jacques Ferrand,' and showed a most artistic versatility. He was powerful in both roles and received the admiration of the audience for his excellent work throughout the evening.

Miss Behrens had the role of 'Lucette Munier' and acted it with a high degree of perfection. The support in all cases was very capable and efficient.

This afternoon 'The Face in the Moonlight' will be repeated and in the evening 'Othello' will be presented. Mr. Mantell and his strong company deserve immense audiences and they should have them.

'The Bride of Seville.'

The following clipping from the Manchester Union of November 8, 1896, is a portion of the criticism of 'The Bride of Seville,' when it was produced in that city. It is from the pen of Mr. Taylor, whose comic opera, 'Capt. Kidd,' is now being rehearsed by the Bostonians for immediate production:

'The libretto makes little pretension to classic form. On the other hand it is happily free from the coarse jokes and inanities of the professional libretto. The story is simple, but it is coherent and it has a natural climax, it does not decrease in interest from a point midway as is so often the case.

'The dialogue is entertaining and the lyrics are uniformly acceptable, several of them are exceptionally clever. The music is very pleasing. It is out of the conventional and is tuneful throughout. The Irish colleen song has the 'rale old Irish flavor' and the ding, dong, chorus is as bright a bit of writing as one often hears. The orchestration is extremely dainty and is full but judicious.'

The advance sale of tickets opens this morning and the indications are that Mr. Owen and his assistants will have all they can attend to. The opera will be given at the Opera House next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

BANGOR HOUSE BALL.

Brilliant Assemblage and Very Enjoyable Party Given by Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Chapman and Miss Chapman.

For several weeks the society people have been awaiting with much impatience the reception and ball to be given by Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Chapman and Miss Clara Chapman at the Bangor House and the realization last evening was quite in accord with the rosy views held by those who were favored with a bid to the brilliant function. No such gathering has been known in this city for years, surpassing any like undertaking. The elegant private apartments of the family on the ground floor and all the first floor of the new part of the hotel and the large dining rooms were thrown open for the use of the guests.

Those who did not dance found card rooms open, for them and those who neither danced nor played cards found pleasant conversational rooms for their use. A room was set apart for the smokers and in the halls were couches, divans and cosy corners. The decorations were elaborate, artistic and very handsome making the dining and other rooms bowers of beauty. Mr. J. H. Moses, the well known Bunker Hill florist, decorated the house and his excellent taste was shown in all the arrangements. The dining room, where the dancing took place, was festooned with laurel, smilax and other green growth with flowers used tastefully for the green background.

A graceful overgreen portiere hung between the two sections of the room, and there were banks of flowers and green at intervals. A brief description is insufficient to do justice to the decorations.

The guests received by the family in private apartments on the ground floor and there left their wraps. They were cordially received at the head of the dining room by Mr. and Mrs. Chapman and Miss Chapman; the ushers being the following gentlemen: Messrs. Eben C. Webster, James I. Dunning, W. W. Paine, Henry C. Stetson, R. H. Palmer, Frank Hight, Carl P. Dennett, John H. Lyon, Storer W. Thaxter.

Pulsifer's orchestra were stationed in the addition to the dining room and played dreamy waltz and rolling two steps and inspiring music which was a delight to the ear. The famous orchestration never played better and would be laurels. People were received of their good for one in having such a fine orchestra here.

Delicious refreshments were served throughout the evening which added the crush or delay in serving the guests. The viands were of the most tempting nature and the service was excellent.

A very pretty scene was presented in the dining room with the beautiful and rich gowns of the ladies whose complexions were plently in evidence. Bangor ladies have made a name for themselves in the matter of dress and it is fully sustained if not added to last evening.

Dancing was continued until morning and those who did not dance passed a pleasant hour in other ways. Departure was a right for the occasion and had given great pleasure to all and only regret expressed was of pleasure were had. The Chapman reception and ball will be long remembered.

Many were present from out of town and the guests included Miss Field of Boston, Mrs. Stevenson and Miss Logan of Rockland, who are visiting Miss Chapman.

A DEADLY OCCUPATION

Bringing Out Borax Iron the Hills In Death Valley.

The deadliest occupation for man or horses is teaming in the borax fields of Death valley of the great American desert. There the lowest point on the world are employed. Scientists declare that the fierce heat in this narrow rent in the cracked surface of the earth is not equaled elsewhere in the world. Where the thermometer often registers 140 degrees of heat unrelieved by even a breath of air, men in sleep at night in pillow cases filled with water in order to avoid lying from collapse, the necessity for the longest teams of mules and horses ever harnessed to draw the great borax laden wagons is apparent.

The desert teams are the longest in the world and the percentage of deaths among the horses is greater than that of domestic animals used in any other calling. Forty to 60 horses are often hitched to one of the lumbering vehicles in which the borax is slowly dragged across the desert. In this work men and horses are pitted against the fiercest heat of the hottest place on earth. The average life of even the strongest horses in this work is six months; for in this length of time they either become broken winded or are unfit for further work from inhaling the deadly dust of the desert or succumb entirely to the frightful heat.

A man who collects the proceeds by the wagon owning man from the sun rays cannot go on from without water without danger of death. When a man breaks down and the water supply becomes depleted he can lay down at top speed for the nearest source of supply and after his return they find that the man himself has come out by that time from the harassed and delirious only to find death in the desert.

The borax wagons weigh 8,000 pounds and carry 2,000 pounds of borax. Behind the wagon is a tank containing 1,000 gallons of water. The tank is carried in the train in case of accident, in order that the drivers may be refreshed by the water. The wagons are hitched together in a single train, the tongue of the first wagon being fastened to the hind axle of the second, and so on. When the driver is ready to start he lashes his team and the train moves off. During the busy season, the horses are unshod, most constantly kept in harness, and the horses are worked almost continuously. The horses are placed in pairs and the world make the journey in 100 miles long.

Besides the battle of the desert the poor animals are tormented by every thousand kinds of insects, the burning sand. After the day's work is done the labor the poor creatures before night to service. After the day's work is done their agony [illegible] the [illegible] for the length of time they either become broken winded
